

If I could leave a time capsule.

By: Abigail McReynolds
Mrs. Brown's class

In today's time, we have a lot of electronic devices. In the future, they may have things much different than we do now.

Sometimes people leave time capsules to help people in the future understand the past better. If I could leave one electronic device in a capsule, I would leave a digital picture frame. With pictures of the Past so the people of the future could understand the past.

Scenery, landscape, people, and everything changes over time.

With a digital picture frame, I would fill it full of pictures with other electrical devices, cars, buildings, landscape, people, and how we do things now. Over hundreds of years cars have changed from the Model T to the trucks, SUVs, and cars that we have today. Without pictures, we could not visualize how much they have changed from then to now. People have also changed over many years. They have changed their hairstyles, the way they dress, the jewelry that they wear, even their make up.

With out pictures we could not look back and learn.

The landscape had changed very much. Many years ago there was open land. Now the landscape and scenery has changed to Subdivisions, shopping malls, tall buildings, and parking lots. Even the looks of schools have changed. The telephone has drastically changed. One of the first phones had a crank on the side and an operator to connect you. Now the phones are wireless, fit in your pocket, have speed dial, and no one to connect you.

With out pictures, we would have no idea of how any of these things looked or brought us to were we are today. If we have come this far, how much further will the future take us. By leaving a digital picture I would be leaving images of the past. If there were no pictures of the past, we would not know where we came from.