

Technical Time Capsule

By:Kenzie Hardion

If I had a technical time capsule what would I put in it? First off I would go buy a digital camera and a memory card. Then I would go around and take pictures of all my family, friends, animals, and all my favorite places. Then I would buy a laptop and I would download all my pictures that I have taken on to it. I would also download all my favorite music, computer games and the stories I have written and all the pictures I have drawn. I would put all kinds of different stuff on the laptop .Like special dates in history and put articles on there about important events that have happened around the world. I would also record my voice so that the people who open the time capsule would know my voice and also I would tell them all about me that my name is Kenzie Hardison, that I am 10 years old. I live Tennessee and that it is March 2009.

I would also put lots of other things in my technical time capsule. I would put my psp and some of my games in there, so they would know what our games where like and how our technical gadgets looked and worked,because I am sure they they will be way more advanced,and our stuff will look like antiques to them.I would also put my cell phone in there ,because I don't even know if they will exsist in the future.
