

Technology

Technology has amazed us for years.

Technology has been more complicated over the years.

Our president today has many tools of technology.

If I were the president's main staff member,

I would use a regular old phone because a phone can do just about any thing.

I would choose a Black Berry, because it's got internet, calling, texting, just about any thing you need. I

I could also keep up with other staff members in order.

If the president or a staff member asked me where the best park, hotel or even a restaurant,

I could look that up on the phone if I was on the

Or if one of them can't remember what time he or she is supposed to be at a meeting.

I can look that up on a calendar in the phone.

I would choose the also choose the LG phone with a projector because, I could show graphs about the businesses around the world that are going down

Some phone have navigators, so if you want directions to a building or your job just best.

The first phone was made in March 10 1876 by Alexander Graham Bell, and it even helped with communication and business. The first

The phone was patented in January 30th 1937.

The president even loves phones he has a Black Berry and as heard he tried to give the Queen of England an iPod.

President Obama and a Chief have spent over 600 million dollars in technology,

Now this is the technology of phones that has happened over the years.
